CINCINNATI LAWLESSNESS.

The doings of the mobat Cincinnati last night rather overshadowed anything of the kind which has occurred recently, "even in the South." There has been constant complaint from citizens and visitors to that city that there was no security for life in Cincinnati, and the fact that people were murdered and sold to medical colleges at $5 a head has prevented strangers from going within striking distance of the collegiate ghouls. The Hamilton county jail since been hanged, or at least been tried and sentenced. This long-continued laxity in the dispensation of justice-non-Music Hall last evening. The audience was orderly, and the result was an appeal to the Legislature for additional legisla-

At the adjournment there was a move of the crowd, as if premeditated, for the jail, which contained WM. BERNER, who a short time since murdered WM. H. KIRK, a well-known, prominent citizen. Ber-NER's trial resulted, though the proof was positive against him, in his conviction for manslaughter and sentence to the peniten tiary for twenty years. Even the Judge before whom BERNER was tried reprimanded the jury for its verdict; the jurors were hooted at on leaving the court-room, and afterward one of them was assaulted by an indignant citizen,

It was this corrupt jury system which brought about the protest meeting, the mob and a conflict which has resulted in the loss of probably twenty lives and the injuring of as many more people. The attack on the jail was fierce, and the dedeath.

The latest news (3:30 A. M.) is to the effect that none of the prisoners were injured; that the mob had been driven off; that after raiding gun stores and armories, the mad people returned to the scene and fired the court-house and prison. In consequence of the lateness of the hour the o'clock.

THE House Committee on Post-offices has authorized a favorable report of the joint resolution authorizing the Treasury o pay mail contractors in the Southern States the amounts found due them under contracts for 1858, 1859, 1860 and 1861, and accruing before those States engaged in the war against the United States. A HOLOCAUST IMMINENT.

[Special to the Courier-Journal.] CINCINNATI, March 28 .- Wm. Berner was on Monday found guilty of manslaughter for the murder of Wm. H. Kirk, Kirk was killed in a stable several months ago by a blow from a hammer, robbed of about $100 fense by the militia brave, even unto in cash, put into a wagon, hauled off toward Cumminsville and thrown into Mill creek, where the body was found two days later. Suspicion pointed toward Berner and a negro named Joe Palmer, who were arrested, and confessed the crime. On trial Berner testified that Palmer did the killing, while he (Berner) only looked on, and got a share of the money. The return of the verdict of manslaughter in a case where cowardly, COURIER-JOURNAL is compelled to go to brutal murder was so evident created a feelpress for its mails, but a second edition | ing of the deepest indignation, the Judge will contain all that is received up to 6 | who tried the case himself declaring it an outrage. The jury on leaving the court-room were hooted at by the crowd, and several suggestions that they be hanged were made, Since then the feeling that justice had been outraged has grown in intensity, and it has been evident since Monday that trouble of a serious nature was brewing. One of the jurors was on Wednesday at

This afternoon Berner was taken privately before the court and sentence passed upon him of twenty years in the penitentiary-the limit of the law.

Placards calling for an indignation meeting at Music Hall to-night have been posted about the city since Tuesday, and an immense crowd assembled there in response to the call. Nothing at the meeting was said or done, however, to indicate that the serious troubles, the particulars of which will be given in later dispatches, were so near at

THE MEETING AT MUSIC HALL.

Witnessing the rather business-like proceedings and order of the vast crowd in Music Hall to-night, one could scarcely have imagined that there was among many of the thousands there assembled a determined intent to take the law into their own hands. Everybody appeared to be in a good humor when adjournment was announced, and moved out of the hall quietly and orderly.

There was more or less talk about "going over to the jail," but not many who spoke in that way appeared to be in earnest.

When the advance guard of the adjourned audience reached Twelfth and Elm streets, somebody shouted "file left!" and with cries of "come this way," a crowd of several hundred moved east on Twelfth street, but hundreds, indeed thousands, followed and swelled the throng until it was a formidable looking procession.

Both sidewalks and the street were filled with noisy hoodlums and men as Vine and Twelfth streets was reached, and their intentions then was obvious enough. They went south on Vine to Court and east on Court to the county buildings, and soon began to swarm around the jail entrances on Sycamore street.

The news that a lynching party was assaulting the jail spread like wild-fire, and soon the entire neighborhood swarmed with the thousands. The advance guard of the would-be lynchers arrived with a piece of joist, rushing down the steps leading to the basement entrance of the jail office. These were backed up by THE CRUSHING CROWD behind. First a window was smashed, and a wild yell went up from the crowd. Another shattered window, and a wilder yell. Then the thump, thump of the improvised battering-ram, pounding against the office door began. Every thump awoke a responsive yell. Bricks and stones were hurled at the jail windows and the shouting mob grew wilder as success seemed nearer. The door at last gave way and the crowd poured into the jail office. Sheriff Hawkins and the few

Deputies who were inside were powerless to stem the fierce human tide; besides the Sheriff had given orders that his officers should not use their weapons on the mob, believing that such a proceeding would only make bad worse. Wild with excitement in finding wa short work to force the door to the cell floors. Soon the stairs and corridors, indeed, the entire interior of the jail, was alive with the mob, yelling and bunting for the murderer, Berner, they came to hang. They soon found that their work had been for naught, so far as Berner was concerned. Disappointed and disgusted, the arder of some of them began to cool. About this time a squad of 15 policemen, who had been stationed in the tunnel that leads from the jail to the court-house, were brought into the jail corridors and began to CLEAR THE MOB. from the second floor, or the rotunda. Sheriff Hawkins stood on the stairway, telling the men to leave and trying to restore something like order. For a time it looked to those inside the jail as if the trouble was about over. The mob, under the direction of policemen and the Sheriff's deputies, were coming down the stairs that lead from the rotunda of the jail to the office rather quietly, and a Courier-Journal reporter stood at the foot of the stairs to get an idea of what sort of material made up the more adventurous portion of the crowd, who were first in the jail. Four or five were young fellows under twenty. Had the police, who came in front of the Sycamorestreet entrance with a patrol wagon, been able to clear the crowd from the entrance, the mob might at this time have been removed from the jail without further serious wouble, but the crowd in front kept pressing in and filling the office and lower rotunda again. Those of the mob who were coming down stairs were anxious back; let us out." At 12 o'clock the people were in full possession of the lower reception-room of the jail for a second of time. A brawny fellow - a blacksmith, they said - was at work with a sledge-hammer upon the iron-barred gate leading to the cell-room. It gave gradually but surely before what seemed herculean strength. As bar by bar was shattered theers arose from the crowd back in the reteption room and jail yard, and it was taken ip by the crowds outside. The latter now PACKED SYCAMORE STREET to get out, some of them yelling to those from curb to curb, and North and South Court streets were dense with humanity. Bonfires had been started in the jail yards and in the streets, and they flared upon the shattered windows and broken shutters which were, in turn, wrenched from their hinges to feed the flames. Slowly but surely the iron gate gave way, and finally it went down far enough to admit of two or three men entering abreast. Just before this, Sheriff Hawkins, perhaps because he found the resistance of the police almost passive, sent for a party of about forty citizen soldiers, who were under arms in their armory hard by, on the north side of Court street, between Main and Walnut. These were marched over and taken into the jail through the tunnel from Main street.

Just as the party working at the gates were about to take possession of the cellroom the order was given to fire, or at least firing commenced. The result was, beside the distressing casualties, to give the police, for the moment at least, moral control. They took advantage of this and cleared the jail through the Sycamore-street entrances, while the wounded were taken out by the Main street way. The crowd retired even under the firing, which many of them seemed to think was with blank cartridges, slowly and sullenly, at no time seeming stricken, but at all time, evidently without intelligent organization or generally recognized leaders. The militia who acted were in their armory, by arrangement of Col. Hunt, to protect their guns. There presence there had only indirect connection with the threats upon the

The cell of Benj. Johnson, one of the negroes recently engaged in the burking job in which three murdered peeple were sold to the medical colleges, was first attacked. The narrow corridor made it impossible, how ever, to use the battering ram with much effect. Blow after blow was struck against the door, but the bars were thick and the door is made of bars an inch wide and half an inch thick and one inch apart crossed at right angles. The door is only about two feet wide, so that it was like hammering a piece of wrought iron. The door was finally bulged in about an inch, and it was only a question of little time until an entrance had been effected and Johnson probably killed in his cell with clubs. Just at THIS CRITICAL MOMENT a posse of policemen broke away from the fight still raging in the corridor down stairs and made a bold and determined charge on the party attacking the cell, and, after a hot; but bloodless fight, succeeded in driving them back. The ringleaders had by this time been cap tured and confined in secluded cells, and, flushed with success, the police, at last succeeded in driving back the mob and clearing the jail. A few moments after this fight the police were re-enforced by about sixty militia, being parts of Companies C D, I, and H, under command of Capts. Folger, Brenner, Brecht and Carroll.

Soldiers were stationed in squads about the jail entrance, fully armed and under orders to resist all attacks. At about 12:15 o'clock a gang of rioters entered the courthouse, and thence passed into the tunnel leading under the ground from the courthouse to the ground floor or basement of the jaii. The tunnel has a pair of heavy iron doors about midway. These the mob quickly forced open. They were met by Company H, which had been stationed behind these doors on guard. The soldiers guns were at their shoulders loaded with ball and with fixed bayonets ready for any attack. There were about a dozen or fifteen soldiers and not less than 100 rioters. The rioters, with a moment's hesitation, fired a volley from revolvers at the militia. The fire was ineffectual, for not a soldier Not so with the volley, which came from the militia in quick answer to the attack. The foremost rioter was struck in the right shoulder. He reeled and fell, while his lifeblood gushed from his wounds. The warm on which the rioters received, and the sight of their bleeding leader struggling on the floor frightened the mob, and they fled pellmell through the tunnel. The wounded man was carried inside by the soldiers. and laid upon a mattress, where he died in about half an hour. He retained consciousness just long enough after being taken possession of by the militia to answer that his name was Henry Gates. The city directory gives but one Henry Gates in the city, and says he is a blacksmith, living on Spring Grove avenue, north of Chambers street. The dress and appearance of THE DEAD MAN show him to be a mechanic, and that is supposed to be his identity. He had a dinner basket with him. No one near knew him No physician could be summoned. The fatal gun was quickly reloaded and no one knows who did the killing, and no one care to inquire. His body was left on the mat-

themselves in possession of the jail office, it tectives and police nen say they saw very few familiar faces. Most of them were young men, but there were some few who evidently were quiet citizens who were drawn into the mob, crazed with excitement. One aged party with spectacles, evidently a German, rushed up the jail stairway and into the corridor, shouting: "Give us justice!"
"Give us justice!" He was shoved down stairs by the police, but he rushed up again with the same cry. This performance he repeated two or three times. A tall man with a black mustache pushed him from the rotunda, and he fell over the railing of the stairway to the flag pavement below. It was a terrible fall, but he picked himself up and started back up the stairs again to the cell corridor. Dan Flanegan, the notorious gracksman, who is supposed to be one of the gang that murdered Officer Kunkel, recently arrested by the detectives shouted from the cell door to the mob-Say, boys, break open my cell and let me

The officers were continually telling the mob in the jail that Berner was not there. "We don't care for that," was the reply

"you've got Palmer, Ingalis, Johnson and McHugh, and we want them." The crowd on the outside that had broken into a blacksmith and carriage shop and taken away everything that could be used as weapons, hurled through the jail Windows hammers, hatchets, pieces of iron and steel, and many of the gang on the inside carried knives in their hands. Some of them were evidently shoemakers, and carried the small knives peculiar to the craft Against such odds the police were fighting with empty hands.

At about 2 o'clock, A. M. the mob assailed Kittredge's gun store on Main street, be-tween Fourth and Fifth streets, carried away all the guns, revolvers and other weapons of every description, with ammunition, and returned to the jail. About fifteen minutes later another section of the mob that who were coming in, "For God's sake keep had broken into the armory on Court street visited Kittredge's to supply themselves with ammunition. The whole front of the store was broken in. One of the double doors was broken from its hinges, and the glass in the other was shattered. Both large plate-glass show-windows were shattered and several show-cases He'll sue the county, and get it all back again. G- d- it, if they'd let us have the son of a b- in the jail, we would have saved the county all the cost. We're going to have those fellows, if we have to shoot every policeman and militiaman in town. This kind of business has gone far enough."

When asked by a reporter what they were going to do with the muskets they replied: 'Sure to take 'em back and chuck 'em in Armory Hall; shan't none of them be

4 A. M.—The latest reports from the scene of the conflict are that a collision between the militia and the mob has occurred, in which from twenty-five to thirty have been killed or badly wounded, and that the mob which was temporarily defeated, have been re-enforced and with coal oil have returned to the jail. The object is to saturate the wood-work and, if possible, burn the build ing to accomplish their object and secure possession of the murderers therein.

Duke of Albany's death was due to the effects of a fall last evening at the Circle Nautigue. Sir Henry F. Reading was sold chiefly by the bears, though a little long stock came out early in the day. The feel ing of the street is that the company can ill afford the loss of earnings which will continue until the anthracite trade becomes bet-

There has been no meeting of the coal combination called yet, but it is likely the Presidents of the carrying companies will get together next week and arrange upon a plan of operations. The feeling is almost unanimous that a restriction of three days every other week will be ordered until August 1, and that a healthy and profitable trade will be the result. The Clearfield bituminous operators have given notice to their men that on and after April 1 their pay will be reduced 1 per cent. The men are talking about a strike, but it is not believed they will go so far as that. The operators are not able to compete with those in the Cumberland region. They will insist unanimously on the reduction in wages. If there should be a strike, it will be beneficial to the anthracite trade.

The Pennsylvania railroad executed a brilliant flank movement on the Baltimore and Ohio coal shippers by securing control of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal Company. Some of these shippers invaded the Pennsylvania region at Philadelphia and points on the Delaware and made large contracts for coal, all of which must be shipped through the canal. The Pennsylvania bought the canal and put up tolls, so that it is estimated that the Baltimore shippers will lose about 50 cents per ton. Of course the coal could be shipped around the Capes, but in that case it would have to be lightered twice, at about the expense of the extra tells. The anthracite coal shipments to the West this year are estimated at 6,000,000 tons. A shipper in Chicago believes that the city will take about 20 per cent. more coal than last year, when the increase over 1882 was 19 per cent.

The decision of Judge Wallace, which legalizes the lease of the National Telegraph Company to the Baltimore and Onio lines, caused a decided weakness in Western Union, which carried it to within a half per cent. of the lowest price of last January. Mr. Gould was on the street, but he gave no supporting orders in this or any other stock. The effect of the defeat of the Whisky Bill is expected to hasten the liquidation of

The effect of the defeat of the Whisky Bill is expected to hasten the liquidation of the speculative interests in the West, and both the grain and provision markets will feel it. This will pave the way for a drop to the legitimate market value of Western products, and though the operation may prove an unpleasant one for the speculative interest, it will result in good to the whole country. In the case of a tightening of money, the Western banks who have been loaded with whisky paper for a year or more country. In the case of a tightening of money, the Western banks who have been loaded with whisky paper for a year or more may be inconvenienced.

A street story, that the Lackawanna and Nickel-plate had made contracts for 1,000,000 bushels of wheat from Chicago at 12½ cents, was denied at the offices of both companies. Deacon S. V. Smith, the late bull in Lackawanna who engineered the great squeeze, offers calls on that stock, good all next week, at 125 for half per cent., and on Union Pacific at 76, same time and price. Two failures in the tea trade caused a drop of 4 cents, but it had no effect on stocks. Exchange is weaker and the shipments tomorrow will be light.

The earnings of the Pennsylvania for February, and the Erie for January, show a falling off which is far from encouraging, but the heavy shipments of grain from Chicago and the increasing west-bound freights indicate better times temporarily. Northern Pacifics were strong and showed a fair aduance.

A MOUNTAIN KING.

Who Imagines That His Wife Is Trying to Poison Him.
[Special to the Courier-Journal.]

GAINESVILLE, GA., March 28.-Rabun county is now divided into two factions, Bramlette and antiBramlette. Thomas J. Bramlette, several years ago, was one of the boldest mountaineers who defied the operations of the revenue raiders. He lived in a wild fastness, into which it was certain death for a revenue official to enter, and they soon learned that it paid best to avoid his lair. His prowess in thus beating off the officers raised him to a high niche in the estimation of his fellows, who never ceased to praise him. Finally, by a piece of strategy the king of the mountain was captured, his still broken up, and his invincibility broken. On his return home to his wife and seven little children, he became a victim of horrible suspicions, imagining everybody to be his enemy, until at last he even suspected his wife and children of attempting to deliver him up

A year ago, while at breakfast, he suddenly dashed the bread from the table and accused his wife of trying to poison him. His family and friends aligned themselves with him, while the family and friends of his wife came to her protection. Through the intervention of a clergyman peace was patched up until about three weeks ago, when hostilities broke out again, the husband declaring that the wife was trying to poison him. A brother of the husband fully believing in his sister-in-law's guilt, took some of the bread to Prof. White, in Athens, for analysis, but that gentleman refused to lend himself to the scheme. Since then Mrs. Bramlette has kept within her house, which is barricaded and defended by her brothers while her husband, with his friends, occupy a point of vantage on a neighboring moun tain peak, expressing a determination to ab duct the children from the mother. If they make an attack a bloody encounter will take

A LETTER FROM JOHN BRIGHT,

In Which the Great English Statesman Gives Utterance to Some Good Thoughts. PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 28.—John Bright was informed of the intention to place a marble bust of him in the Friends' boarding-school here. In his letter in ac knowledgment of the compliment Mr.

Bright writes:
You say I was a friend to your country in the day of need. I did what I could to prevent discord between two English nations, and to teach our people the nature of the great issue which depended on the conflict in which, twenty years ago, your people were engaged. I lamented the conflict, but I wished that England should offer her sympathy on the side of freedom to the slave and in favor of the perpetual union of your great republic. When I look back on the past

I look with unalloyed satisfaction, and would withdraw no word uttered in connection with the contest on which England and the civilized world looked with profound interest. The question of peace to which you refer claims the sympat y of all Christian hations. On your continent we may hope your growing millions may henceforth know nothing of ver. None can assail you, and you are anxious to abstain from mingplay in the quarrels of other nations. Europe, unhappily, is a great camp. Its antions are armed as if each expected invasion from its heighbor, conscious, apparently, that great armies tempt to a war movement should any cause of dispute arise.

The potentares and Governments of Europe I dout not dread war. They seek to guard themselves against it by arrangements. We in England are not free from blame, but with us the love of peace is increasing. No Government can engage in war without risking and even losing the support of our people. We are so Involved with territory and populations over half the globe that difficulties are almest constantly arising, and our danger of war is greater than that of any other nation. I am, however, confident that our feeling against war is sensibly increasing, and I trust and believe the moral sense of our people will more and more condemn it. England and your United States are two nations, but I always like to regard them as one people. On them the growth of all that is good in the world greatly depends.

The marble bust of the great commoner was unvailed in school this evening. All the speakers spoke in warm terms of praise of John Bright.

A LOUISVILLE LECTURER.

Hon. W. B. Fleming Treats the People of Eminence to a Display of His Elecutionary Gifts and Oratorical Powers.

Special to the Courier-Journal. EMINENCE, March 28.—Last night Hon. W. B. Fleming, of Louisville, lectured at Helm Hall, at the instance of the Students' Lecture Association, to a good and appreciative audience. His subject, "Virtue the true source of greatness," was handled in a masterly manner and was well digested. Ho made many excellent points, and showed up as a lecturer of more than ordinary ability. faultless. A recitation from "Macbeth" was admirably rendered, as was also the "Charge" | Rainfall, inches. | Maximum velocity of wind, 27 miles per hour. | Imappreciable. of the Light Brigade," in both cases eliciting the hearty approbation of his attentive audience. He held his audience without a symptom of weariness for near two hours. Mr. Fleming's abilities and scholarly attainments are of the highest order, and when he may again favor Eminence, as in the past, he can count confidently on an audience of the most cultivated and appreciative people the town and surrounding country can afford. Large and intelligent as was his audience last night, many remained away, owing to a rumor put affect to the effect that a serious accident had befallen him, which would preclude his filling his engagement. The injury he received no doubt detracted from the effectiveness of his elocution, but he managed to charm his hearers

A SCANDAL IN HIGH LIFE.

A Divorce Asked by Roger M. Sherman From His Wife on the Ground of Abandonment. NEW YORK, March 28.-Roger M. Sherman, of this city, has brought suit in the Supreme Court against his wife, Florence B. Sherman, for a limited divorce, on the ground of abandonment. Mrs. Sherman is the daughter of the late Gov. J. J. Bagley, of Michigan. The case was brought before the court to-day on a motion brought on behalf of the plaintiff for the custody of his two children, who are living, it is alleged, with their mother in Detroit. In his affidavit, Sherman states that he was married in Detroit in 1876. He brought his wife to this city, where he was appointed Assistant District Attorney. After living together several years a coolness sprung up between the parties, and the wife went to live with her mother in Detroit, taking along the two children. Sherman charges his mother-in-law with responsibility for the existing

Mrs. Sherman denies the allegations of her husband, and her counsel will move to strike out parts of the husband's affidavit, on the ground that they are scandals, Mrs. Sherman has a suit for divorce pending in Detroit

A MURDEROUS PASSENGER.

An Attempt Made to Murder the Conductor of of a Chicago and Alton Train Near Gilliam

St. Louis, Mo., March 28.-Shortly be fore 12 o'clock last night, as the Chicago and Alton east-bound train from Kansas ductor R. G. Dunsmore had some unpleasan words with a passenger named Powell about the collection of fare. Powell wanted to get off at Gilliam, but the conductor told him the train never stopped there. After the conductor had gone into the next car Powell overtook him, garroting him from behind and attempted to cut his throat with pocket-knife. He succeeded in cutting a deep slit in each of Dunsmore's cheeks befor the latter could break away. Dunsmore who has the use of but one hand, then struck Powell two blows, after which they were separated. Later Dunsmore borrowed a revolver, and, going where Powell was sitting, compelled him to surrender his knife and throw up his hands. When the train reached Glasgow, Powell was turned over to the authorities. Under Falling Walls.

CINCINNATI, March 28.—Shortly before noon a portion of a brick building at Second and Central avenue, which workmen were tearing down, suddenly fell, burying five or six men in the ruins. They were all supposed to be killed, but it is found four only are injured. One is missing. Whether still in the ruins is not yet known. It is not thought any of the injured will die. A portion of this building fell during the February flood.

"BUSINESS."

FRIDAY, March 28.—The grain markets of the West generally exhibited a jerky and Intermittent tendency to better prices, and at the close a slightly better range of prices had been established at some points, while at others they closed lower. The seaboard markets were irregularly higher. Other cereals were somewhat more favorable to sellers. Provisions were firm and slightly higher. The cotton markets were higher both for spot and options, the former being quotably unchanged in Liverpool. The live stock markets were firmer, with a material rise in some grades of cattle on the seaboard.

In New York money was easy. Foreign exchange was steady. Government bonds were firm. The stock market was quiet, but most changes in prices were in favor of In London English consols and American Governments were higher, but American railroads were lower. In Liverpool cotton is firm, corn and lard were higher, and wheat quiet at previous prices.

THE WHISKY SITUATION.

As the whisky dealers and distillers, and the capitalists interested in the trade as lenders of money, analyze the situation. they doubtless find that the resources for self-help are greater than many had imagined. If Kentucky whisky remains as cheap as it has been in the last eighteen months, the consumptive demand will absorb about sixty per cent. of the stock on which the bonding period will expire, even in 1884; and after this year that percentage will increase even if the demand remains stationary. In the next two years the percentage of enforced withdrawals to the total withdrawals will probably range between 25 and 45 per cent., sinking afterward and finally disappearing. The ratio in 1884, however, will not be regularly established until the trade shall recover from its disappointment and shall assume normal and natural conditions. At the rate of production and consumption anticipated the burden will steadily lighten itself, and sooner than many may suppose whisky will be appreciating on its own merits, and not by reason of artificial measures of relief.

The stock in Kentucky and in the Louisville district is mainly owned by dealers in all other sections of the country, and that contingent will of course be carried by means of outside capital. It appears to be the logical inference as well as the theory of business circles that our local interests can be provided for, with fair prospects for the final outcome. It will be in the nature of a long investment, but on a security of rising value, unless all past ex- gain of only $20,000,000 in three years. periences be reversed in the future.

The great economic wrong and blunder which Congress has committed is none the less conspicuous. This work will withdraw from the general trade and lock up in the Treasury millions of the money of commerce, thereby injuring the interests of general business. The Treasury is already overburdened with the proceeds of surplus taxation, and will collect this year about $110,000,000 more money than is needful. And the beauty of this brilliant statesmanship is seen in the fact that the whisky is in the Government's hands, and the taxes as well secured by the collateral held as if lodged in the Treasury.

A QUEST ON OF PIE.

The color line seems to be creating as much commotion in the Republican party as the equinoctial storms are causing in

For instance, the blacks of Memphis have for some time been complaining that the Postmaster of that city discriminates against them in his official appointments in favor of the mulattoes. Wednesday night they held a meeting, to which no saddle-colored citizen was admitted. Very fiery elecution was indulged in, and a demand was made for the dismissal of some of the mulattoes and the appointment of blacks in their places. The following resonant resolution was adopted:

plain on account of what now looks like an open snubbing of black men in refusing to allow them any Government pie, even though our petitions are on file, yet. 'with malice toward none and charity for all.' we object to discriminations against ourselves as black men."

This seems to be the spirit which is prevailing among the colored people throughout the country. Thursday the district convention of colored voters of Northwestern Pennsylvania passed resolutions "renouncing allegiance to the Republican party, and declaring hereafter to vote as one man with the party that will recognize white hearts under black skins." They appointed delegates to the National Colored Convention, which meets in Pittsburgh next month, the chief object of which is to demand a more equal division of "Government pie" between themselves and their white

Down in Georgia it is a black horse of another color. There, as elsewhere, the white Republicans get all the "pie," but it seems that the colored men there have the babit of outnumbering their white brothers in the political conventions, and against this the whites are vigorously kicking, the leading white Republicans of the State having called a district convention, to which none but white men will be

Even in Lousiville the colored voters are complaing because the Republicans propose to shut them out from a representation on the delegation to Chicago. Meanwhile this question of color con-

Congress. Perhaps the President, when entering on this plan, had not taken into account that there was a colored member of Congress; but now that he has invited about everybody else, he is very acutely conscious, it is said, that there is such a member, and that he has not yet been asked to dinner. It will not do to slight Mr. O'HARA, who reprehis party are largely dependent; and how to secure an appreciative company to dine with Mr. O'HARA is a problem which is distracting even as astute a politician as the President is accounted to be.

Then there is the Rev. C. S. SMITH, a man of ability, who is out in an address, the substance of which is, though couched in more dignified terms, that his race must have a bigger slice of the "Government

Indeed, the whole matter seems to resolve itself into a question of pie. The white Republicans have for over twenty years done all the pie-eating, while the blacks have served the purpose of those 'five-and-twenty black birds baked in a pie," celebrated in immortal jingle; but now, as in the song, the birds have "begun to cry," as if they objected to being used further as a constituent of the pie, having developed something of a taste for pie themselves. Pie, American pie, under any circumstances, is a matter full of doubts and dangers, and it certainly seems as if in the present instance it were no exception to the

THE STOCK OF GOLD.

The Financial Chronicle criticizes the mint estimate of the stock of gold in the country, and asserts with much confidence that the amount is greatly exaggerated.

The mint pursues this method of computation: Taking the amount in the country on a certain date, say January 1, 1879, as found by as careful a calculation as the circumstances admit of, it adds the net coinage since, a. e., the total coinage, minus the recoinage, and adds to or subtracts from the sum the net imports or exports. The remainder, minus the amount consumed in the arts, is taken by the mint as showing the net addition to the domes-

We assume that the mint statisticians have followed proper precautions to avoid counting the net imports twice, i. e., at the port of entry and again in the coinage, and this the Chronicle does not question, That item being correctly reported, it is evident that the mint's methods are scientific, and, as near as possible, the results are probably accurate. It would not be possible for official statisticians to adopt a more reliable system of computation, and the only dangers of error are in clerical mistakes in the Government offices, errors involving small amounts in the consumption of gold in the arts, and the comparatively slight contingent of the difference between the amounts brought in by emigrants or carried out by

Proceeding according to these methods, the mint report puts the stock of gold coin and bullion in the United States on November 1, 1883, at about $606,000,000. The Chronicle says that this estimate is excessive. It bases its argument on the variations in the visible gold supply in all banks and in Sub-treasury at different periods. The latter has increased from $253. 632,511 on Nov. 1, 1880, to $273,179,117 on Oct. 1, 1883. The Chronicle is skeptical of the claims made for the growth of the invisible supply, when the visible shows a that this illustration proves too much namely, that the Chronicle's test is worth less. This is even more conclusively proven by comparing the stock of November 1, 1883, with the stock of November 1, 1881, which amounted to $294,905,569. This shows a loss of $21,000,000, which would of course imply, according to the Chronicle that the country absolutely reduced its stock of coin and bullion in those two years, though the net exports were about $10. 000,000 and the American production about $70,000,000.

Another argument in derogation of the mint's estimate is, that if the latter be true, the people are hoarding $333,000,000 of gold, or a considerably larger amount than appears in the public reservoirs of money. As to this we reply that the whole amount outside of those reservoirs is not hoarded, as there is a considerable percentage in circulation. Moreover, the relative invisible supply, as thus indicated, does not vary from what is observed in other specie-paying nations to such a degree as to impair the credibility of the official estimate.

There is much hoarding of gold by people of means so small as to render their possible investments in interest-bearing securities insignificant. They, therefore, keep this money for a rainy day, nor would it be at all surprising if the aggregate should be as large as indicated. That non interest-bearing hoard of the poor, as large as it looks to the Chronicle, is but a contemptibly small fraction of the interestbearing hoard of investors, not a thousandth part so numerous. The gold certificates, the Chronicle thinks, should take the place of the gold hoarded by the people. There is no apparent reason why this should happen, as the certificates offer no interest and would appear to the class of people who hoard gold in the same light as bank-notes or other paper money.

CINCINNATI might get up a Festival of Jurors, as special interest seems directed to that subject in the Burking City just now. The Senators Who Will Tell Who Their First Choice is for the Presidency.

GENERAL WASHINGTON NEWS.

[Special to the Courier-Journal.]
WASHINGTON, March 28.—Great efforts have been expended to make it appear that Mr. Sargent's transfer from Berlin to St, Petersburg was effected at his desire. The contrary is the truth. A dispatch received from Sargent by a friend in this city, distinctly states that he would have preferred to stay at that post and leaves it to be inferred that he was not consulted as to the transfer. The friends of the Minister outside of the Administration circles assert if he had been left to choose he would have undoubtedly preferred to remain in Berlin and fight it out there.

"Talk of this thing being done with Mr. Sargent's consent," exclaimed a Senator today, "and then call it a transfer and even an advancement. It is preposterous. It is simply silly to endeavor to make it appear as Nobody is deceived. No one knowing Mr. Sargent thinks that he asked to be re called or transferred to St. Petersburg. post at Berlin is a more important one than that at St. Petersburg, though the pay is the same. In some way it is the most desira-ble mission abroad, while that to Russia is ble mission abroad, while that to Russia is coveted by few on account of the high cost of living there. Why couldn't the State Department come out honestly and say that it is a removal, instead of sending a sensational and highly-colored dispatch to Mr. Sargent, which is not going to pull the wool over the eyes of the diplomatists. The creaking of the machinery is heard too plainly, and the scene-shifting hasn't been done outse cleverly enough to hasn't been done quite cleverly enough to deceive people."

This Senator's views represent those held by a minority of the Senate, though no one outside the devoted adherents of the Administration pretends to say that Mr. Sargent asked to be transferred to St. Petersburg, or that it was done with his consent.

THE WHISKY INTEREST. HON. PHIL. THOMPSON TO INTRODUCE A RESOLUTION TO ABOLISH THE TAX ON

DISTILLED SPIRITS. [Special to the Courier-Journal.] WASHINGTON, March 28 .- Hon. Phil. Thompson will introduce a resolution on Monday declaring it inexpedient for the present Congress to abolish the tax on distilled spirits. So much was said in the debate on the Whisky Bill about the early annihilation of the whole internal revenue system that it is feared that, without such a guarantee as that indicated is given by Congress, the whisky men may find it impossible to make any kind of financial arrangements in their present great strait.

Mr. Thompson thinks his resolution will The great deal of speculation as to the meaning of the debate on the Whisky Bill is the sheerest nonsense. The bill was of the simplest character and had reference only to relieving the whisky men, who are seriously overloaded. It had no sort of relation to the fight that is being made for the reduction of the tariff. This talk then that the defeat of the bill is, in reality, a Randall triumph in the great contest pending With the Chronicle's pardon, we must say is of the idlest character, and can be easily for a violation for a violation of the chronicle's pardon, we must say is of the idlest character, and can be easily for a violation of the chronicle's pardon, we must say is of the idlest character, and can be easily for a violation of the idlest character, and can be easily for a violation of the idlest character, and can be easily for a violation of the idlest character, and can be easily for a violation of the idlest character, and can be easily for a violation of the idlest character, and can be easily for a violation of the idlest character, and can be easily for a violation of the idlest character. proved by the vote cas cumbed to a pressure from many directions, some of it based on business argument and a great deal of it on popular clamor and fanaticism. THE SPEAKER VOTES THAT THE HOUSE TAKE A HOLIDAY TILL MONDAY.

|Special to the Courier-Journal. WASHINGTON, March 28.—Speaker Carlisle cast his first deciding vote to-day. The proposition was to adjourn the House until Monday. Mr. Bland, Chairman of the Commit tee on Coinage, Weights and Measures, offered the motion in the interest of the Tradedollar Bill now before the House. The vote showed a large majority against Mr. Bland and in favor of a holiday to-morrow, but there being no quorum present, dilatory motions were resorted to by the minority, and tellers were kept on the floor for nearly an hour. At last when the count showed that but one vote was lacking to make a quorum the Speaker cast his vote with the majority and settled the question, Loud applause greeted the Speaker's vote. It has been a long time since the House took a day off, and the large amount of business that many of the members have with the different departments requires the devoting of & day to it every now and then. It is really not a holiday then that the Representatives take, out a day on which to attend to the private business of their constituents.

REDUCE THE TARMF. SO SAYS REPRESENTATIVE LOWERY, OF THE STATE OF INDIANA.

[Special to the Courier-Journal.] WASHINGTON, March 28 .- "How is public sentiment in Indiana on the tarifft" a reporter asked Representative Lowery, of that State, to-day.

"The Democrats," he replied, "want some legislation here for a reduction of the customs duties to help them car ry the State. We want to cut down the surplus revenue and I reduce taxation, but not by striking at internal taxation. people of Indiana, in my judgment, are in favor of letting the tax on whisky and toticles are better able to bear the burden of taxation than tobacco and whisky; but there are a good many necessaries of life that can and ought to be cheapened. We must do this by reducing the tariff."

SENATORS WHO WILL NOT TELL WHO THEY PAVOR FOR THE PRESIDENCY.

[Special to the Courier-Journal.]
WASHINGTON, March 28.—Several very mmendable efforts have been made during the fortnight just past, and it is said one or two are now being made, by enterprising newspapers to secure a canvass of the sentiment of Congress on the Presidential outlook and preferences of Senators and members. So far everything in this direction has failed, and if the review is printed and all are quoted it may be set down as positive that some have had words put into their A correspondent who has been working

In the House it was somewhat better, although it was ascertained that the result in either branch of Congress will be of very little valua as showing the sentiment of the country for individuals who are possible or probable rendiciates. Any one who has obable tandidates. Any one who has ver attempted a task of this kind can have never attempted a task of this kind can have little or no conception of its magnitude. It is more than a week's hard work often to get the views of the State delegation. It is estimated that it would take four men a month to canyass Congress on a given sub-ject, and those who have taken such con-tracts at $500 have regretted the employ-ment.

COMMITTEE DOINGS.

REPORTS. FAVORABLE AND OTHERWISE, ORDERED ON SEVERAL BILLS AND RESO-LUTIONS OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The House Committee on War Claims to-day agreed to report favorably a bill authorizing the ac- day. ounting officers of the Treasury Department to settle the claims of the several States of the Union against the United States for nterest on loans or moneys borrowed and expended by the States for the benefit of the United States, under authority of the act of Congress of July 27, 1861, entitled "An act to indemnify the States for expenses incurred by them in the defense of the United States. The bill provides that the claims must be presented within one year from the passage of the act.

At a meeting of the House Committee on Judiciary, an adverse report was ordered on the McGarrahan claim. Messrs. Collins, Bisbee and Maybury will offer a minority reort, to be the same as the report agreed to y the Committee on Private Land Claims of the last Congress, in favor of the claimant.
Messrs. Poland and Broadhead will also present a minority report, giving McGarrahan a title to the unpatented lands in the tract in dispute and ordering the issue of scrip at the rate of $1 25 per acre for the value of the ier. There are about 17,000 acres in

At a meeting of the House Committee on Labor to-day Representative James was unanimously instructed to favorably report a bill providing that it shall be unlawful for a pully of the United a bill providing that it shall be unlawful for any person in the employ of the United States, or any State, to contract with any one to hire out the labor of prisoners con-fined in any prison or jail for a violation of any laws of the United States. The violation of the act is made a misdemennor, punishable by a fine of from $500 to $1,000 or imprisonment from one to three years. Mr. James has prepared a report to accompany the bill. It says that in some cases State prisons take persons convicted for a violation of the laws of the United States, without cost to the Federal Govern-States, without cost to the Federal Government, and then in order to make the arrangements profitable have inhumaniy treated them. The contract system, the report says, is wholly adverse to reform. Prisoners are treated as dumb beasts, being driven to work by men whose only aim is to get a certain amount of work from them every day—men who look upon convicts as only so much machinery for making money, and whose chief recommendation for the position is that they are the highest bidders for the human beings hired by them.

The House Committee on Banking and Currency has authorized a favorable report on the bill amending the Revised Statutes so that the citizens of the five civilized nations of Indian Territory will be permitted to form organizations under the provisions of the National Banking Act, their Indian blood to the contrary notwithstanding.

The House Committee on Commerce has agreed upon a bill providing for the inspection of meats for exportation, and prohibiting the importation of adulterated articles of food or drink. The committee adopted that portion of the Senate bill recently reported from the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations which referred to adulterated food or drink. The clause in the Senate bill proposing retaliation when unjust discriminations are made against any product of the United States by foreign powers, was disagreed to the section of the Senate bill providing that "the Secretary of the Trensury may cause to be made a careful inspection, etc.," and substituted the section providing for the appointment of six inspectors in each customs district. Mr. Clardy will probably make a minority report. He is opposed to the system of inspection proposed by the House committee, and favors that recommended by the Senate committee.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—It is Mr. Anderson, of Kansas, who is anxious for Congress to finish up by 12 o'clock Monday, the 2d of June. Good judges of the situation are of opinion that the session will continue at least until July, and that it will require diligence to

Senator Beck takes a great interest in the When it was reached on the calendar to-day Mr. Frye, who has it in charge, moved to make it a special order for May 1. Mr. Beck opposed this motion and urged that the bill should be proceeded with at once, since it was of more importance than many other cussion, and the bill remains at the head of the calendar of unobjected measures.

The only feature of the debate on Blair's Educational Bill to-day was a speech in its support by Mr. Lamar. The Senator from Mississippi rarely speaks; but when he does he commands great attention on the part of his brethren on the floor end the auditors in the gaileries. His effort to-day was unusually eloquent. He held that the bill would confer almost unspeakable benefits on the white and black population of the South. It would be an expression of respect and affection which would draw the Southern States in closer relations with the General Government, and dispel forever the impression that the Gov-

Mr. CULLOM would not vote for the bill in its present shape, but thought it ought, in some respects, to be amended. The education of the youth of the country belonged, he said, to the separate States, and the only excuse for the General Government interfering was when a State could not, or would not, educate her children. So far as his State (Illinois) was cone-med, she was perfectly able and willing to educate all her children. He knew he spoke the sentiments of his people when he said Illinois neither asked nor desired to receive a dollar in educational aid from the United States Government. He would like to see the appropriation confined to the Southern States exclusively, and so adjusted as to begin with only about $6.000,000 and rise for a few years, as the money could be profitably applied, and then diminished year by year as the States themselves became able to carry on the work.

Mr. George also made a speech in favor of the bill on constitutional grounds.

Eight Red-handed Murderers Pay the Penalty for Their Atrocious Crimes On the Gallows in Various Places.

PLACERVILLE, CAL., March 28 .- Fran cisco Peres was hanged to-day for the murder of Wm. and Jacob Wirges. The crime was the result of a dispute whether Peres or William Wirges spoke the purest Castillian. Both men were intoxicated. seized an Iron bootjack and knocked William insensible. Jacob rushed in and Peres drew a knife and struck him in the neck and killed him instantly. William revived, when Peres finished him with the knife. On the scaffold, Peres said: "Gentlemen, I don't speak good English. I killed those men to preserve my own life." The drop was then sprung. His death was instantaneous.

THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

Mr. Henry Watterson Makes a Strong Presentation of the Matter Before the House Judiciary Committee.

EXISTENCE OF THE LAW IN ENGLAND.

WASHINGTON, March 28 .- The House Judiciary Committee heard Henry Watterson in explanation and advocacy of the proposed Eight-hour News Copyright Bill. There was a full attendance, and the members of the committee manifested much interest in the topic. Mr. Watterson's presentation of the matter was substantially identical with his argument before the Joint Library Committee on the 14th inst., except that he today submitted the following comprehensive statement of the principles in adjudicated cases on the subject:

"Whether in England the copyright existed at all in newspapers seemed to have been doubted by Lord Chelmsford in Piatt vs. Walter, 17 Law Times (N. S.), 159. referring to the language of Knight Bruce, L. J., in ex parte pars, although in the latter case Turner, L. J., considered a copyright in a newspaper as a right which undoubtedly exists, but the doubt was set at rest by Vice Chancellar Malins, in the case of Cox vs. Land and Water Company, L. R. of Eq., 324, who decided the question, remarking that the idea of there being no copyright at all in newspaper articles was repugnant to common sense and common honesty. said: 'Now suppose, for instance, the proprietor of a newspaper employs a correspondent abroad, and that correspondent, being employed and sent abroad at great expense, makes communications to the newspaper which are highly appreciated by the public; can it be said that another newspaper, being published perhaps in the evening of the same day, may take and publish those communications in extenso with or without acknowledgment?' If that is the law, it is a monstrous state of law, repugnant to common sense and common honesty, because that there is property in those articles there can be no shadow of a doubt. After showing by reference to other decisions that the registration was not necessary to secure the right, Mr. Watterson concludes as follows: "Though it is seldom worth while for proprietors to assert the copyright in articles in a newspaper, I am of the opinion that, whether it be letters of correspondents abroad, or the publication of a tale, or a treatise, or a review of a book, or whatever else be acquired, I will not say as a copyright, but as a protection for such property in every article for which he pays as will entitle him, if he thinks it worth while, to prohibit any other person from publishing the same thing in any other newspaper or in any other form. The copyright in newspa-pers was held to be included in the words goods and chattels,' in the 125th section of the Bankruptcy Consolidation Act of 1849. In a case before Lord Churchill, in Scotland, Charles Reade maintained an action against the Glasgow Revald for damages for infringement of copyright by the publication of his sketch, called 'A Hero and a Martyr, which appeared originally in the Pall Mall uzetle, and which the Herald had transmitted from London by its special wire for the next day's paper."

THE DANVILLE RIOT.

The Investigation Resumed, Twenty-five Witnesses Being Sworn in at Once-The Republican side Close Their Examination.

THE EVIDENCE IN BRIEF.

WASHINGTON, March 28 .- The Danville investigation was resumed this morning and twenty-five witnesses sworn at once. William B. Kurtz, Postmaster at Waynesand, tiring of her, induced his wife to entice- boro, 200 miles from Danville, testified that the girl to a lonely spot, where he shot her he heard of the Danville riot first on Sunday, and smashed her body with rocks and then burned the corpse. His wife disclosed the mail messenger, who was an ex-telegraph operator, that a telegram had passed over e wires ordering a large invoice of pistola

> This was objected to by Senator Vance, Kurtz heard the jollification speeches after the election. A Democratic speaker said he thanked God for the Danville riot. It was a > blessing in disguise. Other witnesses testified that the Danville circular was extensively circulated before the election, and had the effect of changing many votes. The Democrats relied on the race issue in the canvass. The Republican side suspended the examination at this point, and Senator Vance began the examination in rebuttal by calling Peter V. Booth, a grocer of Danville.

Booth described the riot. He saw the pre liminary quarrel, and when it terminated the witness turned to the crowd of colored people and asked them to leave. They refused and displayed pistols, saying they had been misused and would not leave. the firing began there were about fifteen whites and 1,200 colored men. There was no alignment of whites. Witness heard no command to fire. There would have been no possibility of missing the crowd of blacks if the whites had been seeking to kill them. The witness saw the colored men fire, and fully believed if the whites had not fired they would have all been murdered. The whites ceased firing when the negroes began to run. Some of the negroes turned as they ran and fired back. The witness never heard of any precon-certed plan to bring about the riot. In all the meetings attended by the witness the leaders cautioned their followers to avoid rioting and violence. The election was a quiet one; there never was a quieter one, The witness repeatedly tried to get the colored people to vote, but without success. They said they didn't want to vote. The witness heard a portion of Sims' speech. In his opinion it had a great deal to do with causing the riot. The witness went out without a pistol. After the thing commenced he went back and got a pistol, but the firing was over when he got back. Geo. Adams had testified that the witness fired at him.

A few minutes before leaving their cells the Sheriff notified them he would permit them to go the scaffold unshackled, but each would be accompanied by a Deputy. Howard protested against this, saying he would preferbeing tied and carried up than to have the spectators think he wasn't game enough to mount the gallows without help. The others joined in the protest, but the Sheriff was inflexible. On the scaffold the bandits recognized some familiar faces in the crowd and called out their names cheerfully, bidding them good-bye. When the nooses were adjusted a second general protest was entered by all five, saying that they were being choked to death on the scaffold. Howard requested the Sheriff to move the knot further back, adjusting his neck to the nose. Not one of them apparently showed the slightest sign of fear or regret.

THE LEGISLATURE.

A Lively War of Words Between Messrs. Jackson and Meredith Over the Cecil Pay Resolution.

THE PROCEEDINGS IN DETAIL.

FRANKFORT, March 28.—In the House, on motion of Mr. Stuart, the Senate Exemption Bill (Senator Haggard's bill) was made a special order for next Tuesday at 10:30

Mr. G. W. Reeves, Assistant Clerk of the Senate, reported about one hundred bills passed, agreed to and disagreed to by that

Mr. Jackson called up the Senate resolution directing the Auditor to draw his warrant on the Treasurer in favor of Fannie Ceeil, widow of the late George Ceeil, Register of the Land Office, for an amount equal to one year's salary of the Register.

Mr. Peak offered an amendment providing that the amount slready drawn by Mr. Cecil shall be deducted from the appropria-

Mr. Wood spoke against the resolution. He felt great sympathy for Mr.Cecil, but he could not conscientiously vote for this resolution. We have no right to vote away the people's money in this way.

Mr. Jackson said he thought if any body would look at the physique of the gentleman from Taylor he would come to the conclusion that that gentleman was capable of being the husband of every widow and the father of every orphan child in the State. "In his position on the bill the gentleman does that which he knows to be illiberal and unfair. I will not accuse him of demagoguery, for that would be unparliamentary; but I will say that his conduct smacks very strongly of the demagogue. The Senate has passed this resolution. Shall the House be more niggardly than the Senate! I say, no; let pass this resolution. It is just to the dead and fair to the living."

Mr. Meredith said he would not say he was surprised at the resolution. He had been surprised so often that he had made up his mind not to be astonished at anything proposed in this House-

At this moment the door-keeper announced a message from the Senate. Senator Peay addressed the Chair, stating that Senator Munday and himself had been appointed a committee by the Senate to ask the withdrawal of the resolution making an appropriation to Mrs. Fannie Cecil (the resolution under discussion.)

Gov. Meriwether (sotto roce)—"That cuts off the debate." Jackson asked unanimous consent to say a few words before the request of the Senate was acted on. The Speaker—"Is there any objection? If not the gentleman will proceed." Mr. Jackson said he desired to say, in re-

Mr. Hallam defended the resolutions. He had no purpose but to gain the opinion of the General Assembly upon these questions of public policy. He was willing to go with the resolutions as a whole, or with whatever of them that may be left after the Senate shall have discussed and dissected them. The Senators from Oldham and Daviess were dreadfully exercised over the fear of having the exemption preamble crammed down their dreadfully exercised over the fear of having the exemption preamble crammed down their throats, and yet they were strenuously endeavoring, while getting rid of this cramming, to dictate 10 the Senate such expressions as belong to their peculiarly entertained opinions. The expression of a policy is as clearly set forth in one portion of the document containing the resolutions as in any other. It was the purpose to present subjects embraced therein for discussion with a view of adoption, modification or rejection. The resolutions were the property of the The resolutions were the property of the a view of adoption, modification or rejection. The resolutions were the property of the Senate.

Mr. Boles said he had received such orders to go home as he could not disregard, and he desired to express his opinion now upon these resolutions, showing why he could not support them. He objected to making an asylum of this Commonwealth of dishonest men seeking to escape the payments of their honest debts. He was in favor of the exemptions as were contemplated by the bill recently passed, but was not willing to go farther in liberality. He indorsed the idea contained in every resolution, save the one relating to an adjourned session. He was opposed to coming back. The Legislature had been a failure, and he was willing to acknowledge it, and not have an adjourned session to make the people so declare it.

Mr. Haggard could not agree with the Senator from Barren as to the Legislature having been a failure. It had done as much as it could have done under the circumstances. Five or six weeks had been consumed in the election of United States Senator, Librarian, Warden of the Penitentiary and Public Printer. Hardly had that ended before the floods and the asylums necessarily took away many members, some on pressing missions, involving the interests of their families and of the families of others, and others discharging committee duty which could not be obviated. The work accomplished, while not being all that could be desired, was as much as could reasonably be others discharging committee duty which could not be obviated. The work accomplished, while not being all that could be desired, was as much as could reasonably be expected under the circumstances. There was a large bulk of unfinished business to dispose of, and he believed the best thing that could be done was to have an adjourned session, but at a later date than the first Monday in November?

Mr. Munday said his amendment striking out the first and second sections of Mr. Hallam's resolutions wa done to remove all objections to the resolutions.

Mr. Walton moved to amend by requiring the commissionerspertaining to revenue under

Mr. Moore moved to amend by providing for the appointment of a Committee on Revenue and Reform, consisting of two Senators and two persons appointed by the Governor, and that the Auditor shall be an ex officio member thereof, which shall report to the next General Assembly.

Mr. Robbins disclaimed all intentions to do the Senator from Kenton any injustice or to visit upon him any abuse whatever. He only claimed the right to speak for himself. He was willing to vote for the resolution, if eliminated of the first two sections.

Mr. Moore disagreed with the second resolve in the resolutions. He was opposed to the adjourned session. He was no necessity for it. It would take thirty days to get under headway again. He was not in favor of a very prolonged session, but thought a prolonged session better than an adjourned session.

Mr. Taulbee, surveying the whole field, was impressed with the idea that the legislation now on hand could not be disposed of in the present session without going beyond the bounds of all precedent and reason. He was in favor of amending the date of adjournment as proposed in the resolutions and make it later. He hoped the vote would be taken, and let the Senate know what we are to expect.

Mr. Walton said his amendment was sug-Air, waiton shu his amenument was suggested by a conversation with the Auditor. He was not wedded to any notions of his own, but he had great respect for those people who had given much thought to these subjects, and for this reason he had made the suggestions contained in his amendment,

A lively debate ensued over a parliamentary question involving the boundary line of authority between the Chairman, acting under the rules, and the Senate as a body. The substitute of Mr. Adair for the Talbott bill it is believed will add $100,000 to the revenues of the State if finally carried. The difference in the original bill and the substitute, which passed the House yesterday, lies mainly in its revenue diversion from the common school fund and its falling into the ordinary revenues of the Common-wealth. The taxes proposed to be levied by the bill will be uniformly $100 for each and every saloon selling liquors and $50 for each and every beer shop. It is likely that the Senate will concur in the bill as passed by the House. The emptiness of the treasury, and the pressing need for increased revenue, added to the sensitiveness of constituencies over proposals for increased taxation, will most likely suggest concurrence as a happy intervention.

LOCAL, PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

[Special to the Courier-Journal.1 GALLATIN, TENN., March 28.—The people of Gallatin and the entire county are justly excited over rumors that bills may be filed in court having for the object the repudiation of the Summer-county bonds for $300,000, issued eleven years ago in aid of the Cumberland and Ohio railroad from Nashville to Cincinnati, via Greensburg and Lebanon, Ky. The failure of the Kentucky counties, through which the line passed, to come up with their subscriptions, and the commercial crisis of 1873, prevented the building of the road. The upper end was leased by the Louisville and Nashville. Sumner county has promptly paid the interest on her bonds for eleven years. The road was put in readiness for rails, including a costly tunnel through the ridge, from Gallatin to Scotts ville, Ky., 32 miles, and our people were anxiously awaiting the day it could be utilized.

Mr. Huntington, the capitalist, contracted to complete the road from Nashville to Stanford, connecting with the Chesapeake and Ohio. We expected work to begin in a few weeks, as three lines had been surveyed from Nashville to Gallatin, when senseless rumors about the invalidity of our old bonds were sprung by sharpers at Nashville and elsewhere, to run them down and make money themselves. It is believed also the object was to obstruct and defeat the proposed subscription of half a million at Nashville to the new road.

Whether the bonds are valid or not has nothing to do with the matter, as Mr. Huntington will build the read in spite of all opposition. No reputable lawyer doubts their validity, as the question has already been settled by the Supreme Court. Our people are furious at this attack upon our credit. Sumner county is one of the wealthiest in the State, and is assessed at over $5,000,-O). The interest on the bonds has been gularly paid for eleven years. There are ud calls for an indignation mass-meeting.

THE CLEARING-HOUSE. New York, March 28 .- The Trunk-line Executive Committee held a meeting to day at Commissioner Fink's office. The enterprise is intended to be an important factor in ranway management of the future.

NO INJUNCTION GRANTED. New York, March 28.—Judge Walkace, in the United States Circuit Court, handed down his opinion this morning in the suit of the Western Union Telegraph Company to restrain the National and Baltimore and Onio Telegraph Companies from operating a telegraph line over the West Shore railroad. He declines to grant a preliminary injunction. In his decision, Judge Wallace says: sufficient appears, however, to indicate that the railway company is hostile to the complainant by the removal of some of the latter's poles, and it is deemed reasonable that the complainant be protected, during the pendency of the suit, in in its possession of the line, which it has actually constructed. To this extent an injunction will be granted as against the Railway Company.

Although a young man, he has shown marked ability and judgment in the management of the affairs of the J., M. and I., and has done the altairs of the J., M. and I., and has done much toward putting that property in its present excellent shape. His standing in this city could not be better shown than by stating the fact that Mr. McKenna's name has been favorably mentioned in connection with the coming Mayoralty race. Mr. McKenna is at present out of the city.

The attention of President Arthur was called several weeks since by Cardinal Mc Closkey and other eminent Roman Catholic prelates in this country to the proposed sale, by order of the Italian Government, of the Propaganda property at Rome, including the American College. The Propaganda property was levied upon by the Italian Government, under the laws of 1866 and 1873. The proceedings were enjoined by lower court, but its decision was eventually reversed by the Supreme Court of the Kingdom and a sale ordered. With a view to saving the American College, Cardinal McCloskey and other prelates of the Roman Catholic Church in this country requested the intervention of the United States Government in its behalf. By direction of the President, the Secretary of State addressed a note to Astor, United States Minister at Rome, instructing him to lay the facts in the case before the Government and the King of Italy and endeavor to obtain, if not a perpetual abandonment of the impending sale, such a stay of proceedings as would enable the friends of the college in this country to determine whether any remedy could be devised. Astor was further informed that while the American College is technically held by the Propa-ganda, it is virtually American property; that it had been built up and supported by money from this country, and its sale would sacrifice interests exclusively American.

From Astor's telegram to the Secretary of State it appeared that the representations which the former was directed to make to the Italian Government have had the desired effect, and the American College will be exempted entirely from the impending

Dr. Winfield said he was sorry to hear this. He had hoped for $30,000. They must have more faith in God and in their brethren. He thought it was too much their habit to discount the promises of their church members. Their stewards, preachers and all do this. It has hurt Methodism. He said, make a large appropriation, go to the churches with it, ask God and you will get it.

Bishop Wilson said they should make a part definite and a part contingent.

Brother Carter believed in having both, but said if they promised more than they could pay the brethren would lose faith in them.

The mass meeting was held last evening at the Fifth and Walnut-street Methodist church. There was a fair-sized audience present, and the time was occupied by explanations of the work by several ministers. Bishop A. W. Wilson, of Baltimore, presided, and opened the proceedings with short address, in which he briefly summarized the work that had been done during the pas 100 years, and what they proposed to do in the next century.

> Rev. David Morton, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, was the next speaker, and be begun by reading the financial statement of the work, which has already been published. He went on to say that, owing to the comparative newness of this move, but few people understood it as thoroughly as they ought to. The name 'Church Extension' had been adopted be cause it more fully expressed the meaning of the work. The proposition is simply to extend the works of Jesus Christ by means of church edifices. Protestants in this respect were not as wise as they might be, and the Roman Catholics have set them an example which might be followed with safety. They have shown by the magnificent edifices they have erected all over the world, and the money they have spent in this way, that they were really in earnest about saving their souls. The Church Extension proposes to do the work in two ways. One by securing funds and turning them over to poor neighborhoods in the nature of a loan for the purpose of erecting churches. Some time ago he had picked up a Northern paper in which was a lette speaking of the deplorable lack of churches n some of the eastern counties in Ken-acky. It was presented in such a manner tucky. It was presented in such a manner as to make him indignant, and he determined to write a letter to the paper denying the charge. Before doing so he determined to investigate the matter and see just how it stood. He did so, and the information he gained was startling in the extreme. The fact that there were fourteen county-seats in Eastern Kentucky in which there is not and never has been a church of any kind was a most alarming piece of inany kind was a most alarming piece of in-telligence to him. This foul disgrace must cease, and the people must go to work to stop it. The people who are used to worship-ing in fine edifices must do something to remedy this evil. The object of the Church

Extension was just to meet such cases as this. If 20 per cent. of the amount required is given to the different neighborhoods it will maure the erection of a church, as they will raise the balance. If they had $10,000 for this purpose, it would secure the erection of twenty churches in those neighborhoods in six mouths. The proposition was to secure $50,000 as a loan fund for this State, and it could easily be done. There were numbers of cold-hearted men who would say that it cold-hearted men who would say that it half not be done, but this was a mistake, me time ago, when this was proposed, ne one suggested to name this fund the vanaugh Loan Fund as a token of respect the Bishop. He then proceeded speak a few words of the favor th which this was received and to speak a few words of the favor with which this was received and near the close of these remarks there came from the eloquent and logical speaker a spontaneous burst of affection and reverence for his life-long associate in the gospel work and friend, Bishop H. H. Kavanaugh, that thrilled through the attentive andience like an electric spark. After recounting the intention of his brethren in the churches here to build a monoment for him—not of marble that he three times refused—but of a loan fund of $50,000 to bear his honored name and go on doing its work of church building till build him the monument, that he from his seat in glory could look down upon and approve, the speaker said: pprove, the speaker said:

The bair on the head of the corpse clearly indicated that the body was that of a colored woman, but the skin was almost white, which added to the mystery and rendered futile all attempts to solve it without some positive information. No one had been missed from the vicinity, and in a short time the conclusion was reached that a murder had been committed in another part of the

When Coroner Miller arrived he began a quiet investigation, and learned that a colored woman named Annie Smith had disappeared suddenly and mysteriously from that locality about three months ago. Harriet Day, the mother of the dead woman, was found, and when mestioned about her found, and when questioned about her daughter, said she had been living with her husband, Harrison Smith, on the Point, and had been driven from home and whipped by been seen since. This statement led the Coroner to think that there had been contagions and foul play in the case. He ordered the City Undertaker's small-pox wagon and instructed the police to arrest all of the dead woman's relatives. It was claimed that the small-pox theory explained the whiteness of the skin, and fearing that the story might be true the Coroner determined to move cautiously. It was quietly hinted, however, that the story was told for the purpose of preventing a post-mortem and a thorough investigation of the case.

Officers Kelly and Keneely went in search of the man Harrison Smith, and found him in the City Hospital, where he has spent the most of the winter. He stated that last fall he was living in Hall & Eddy's lumber-yard on the Point, and his wife became very unruly, and when he reproved her she threatened to kill him. She stooped down to pick up a rock, and he slapped her, which enraged her so that she left him and went to her mother in O'Neil's alley. He was taken sick with the asthma soon after her departure, and was given a permit to go to the bosnital where he remained several sick with the asthma soon after her departure, and was given a permit to go to the hospital, where he remained several weeks. After leaving there he met her once on Preston and Jefferson streets, and had a short talk with her, but she would not tell him where she lived. They made friends and resolved to return to housekeeping as soon as he recovered. He never saw her after that meeting, but once, while at his brother's house, he was told that she had the small-pox. A few weeks after receiving this information he met a man named Scott, who knew his wife and her mother, and he inquired of him about her. Scott told him that Annie had gone away, and none of her relatives knew what had become of her. This was the last he heard of her till that night when the officers came to the hospital and arrested him.

The case is shrouded in mystery, but it is hardly possible that the facts will ever be fully known. The Coroner will resume his investigation this morning. The body was badly decomposed and the stench about the piace was stifling.

AN INCENDIARRY'S WORK.

AN INCENDIARY'S WORK. A Tobacco Factory Set On Fire Last Evening and Almost Destroyed.

A disastrous fire occurred last evening about 10:30 o'clock, in which a three-story brick building, used as a tobacco factory, was completely gutted. The building was located in the alley between Sixteenth and Seventeenth, and Grayson and Walnut streets, and a loss of about $2,000 was entailed on it and the stock of tobacco it contained. The fire was discovered by Officer M. T. Callahan, who turned in an alarm from Box 63, which was promptly answered by the Fire Department. As the windows were all closed with shutters the fire did not break out to any great extent, although the interior of the upper floor was quickly all ablaze. As soon as ladders could be raised the engines commenced playing on the finmes, and before long had them under control. Everything in the interior was destroyed, but the walls and roof were left standing. A great deal of tobacco was stored inside, and as this burned readily it stored inside, and as this burned readily it was a total loss.

The building was owned by Mr. George Howard. It was valued at $3,000 and fully covered by insurance in the Liverpool, London and Globe Insurance Company. The stock was owned by Mr. Alex Turpin. He has usually paid for his purchases with drafts on a Covington firm, but last week he bought a lot of hogs from Bourne & Harper, and in paying for them made the draft payable to himself. This was not given much attention at the time, but subsequently led to vague suspicions. The suspicions assumed dimensions of fears last Tuesday, the day the hogs were shipped, and an effort was made to stop their delivery at Covington by withholding the bills of lading, but it was discovered that the shipment was made in Dickey's name. After waiting till Friday to hear from him the firm inquired by telegraph of the Covington firm on whom Dickey had usually drawn his drafts, and received a reply stating that he had left with all of the funds he had on deposit in the banks. The Covington firm were impressed with the belief that there was something wrong and so stated. Yesterday morning Mr. J. C. A Difficulty Renewed.

The difficulty between Joe Rademaker and Sam, St. Martin, mentioned in yesterday's paper as having occurred at the latter's saloon, on Green street, brought about another difficulty yesterday morning. It will be remembered that Rudemaker entered will be remembered that Rademaker entered the saloon and, putting a pistol in St. Martin's face, cursed him. The latter was very indignant at this, and was waiting for an opportunity to get even. Just before court opened yesterday Rademaker was walking down Court-place when he observed St. Martin standing at the corner of Sixth, waiting for him. He turned and jumped into 'Squire Peay's office, and just as he did so St. Martin drew a pistol and fired, the ball cutting close to him. Both were arrested.

ONE THOUSAND SHARES.

The Twenty-five Thousand Dollar Block All Takens and the Announcement Made That the Exposition Will Open on Time.

THE ENTERPRISE A FIXED FACT.

A very satisfactory meeting of the canassing committees for stock in the Exposi-ion was held at the Board of Trade last evening. The names of the committeemen were called by the Secretary with the number of shares they had pledged themselves to have taken, and the result was very gratifying. Some of the committees reported more hares than they had pledged, which responses were received with applause.

The number of shares reported amounted to 201, which, added to the 760 previously reported, brough the total up to 961, leaving only 39 shares in the 1,000 share plan ot subscribed for.

Col. Young addressed the meeting, and thanked the gentlemen who had engaged in the work for their disinterested zeal in the enterprise. He did not like to see an odd number of shares left untaken, and said be would take the odd nine and cut the number down each to be and nine and cut the number down even to thirty. His remarks aroused the Exposition pride of the meeting, and gentlemen began to rise up all over the room and subscribe for the remainder. In a few moments the Fresident announced that the entire block of 1,000 snares was taken, which, added to previous subscriptions, raised the total to $178,000.

Col. Young said that super recourses which amount of stock. He was happy to make the official announcement that the Exposition would be held, and with the substantial aid that had already assisted him he could guarantee a magnificent event.

Col. Young's remarks were received with applause, and when he closed Capt. J. H. Leathers arose and said that, while he was gratified at the financial showing, he fully realized that $22,000 of stock were still not taken, and also that a number of the largest industries of the city had not yet become subscribers. He disliked very much to revive the grivance question, but he had talked to a number of gentlemen on the subject, and they had convinced him that they did have grievaces, and that they were of a serious nature. These men were in earnest when they complained of the treatment they received at the hands of the management last year, and he felt that they should be approached in a spirit of courtesy and assured that their position was understood. He suggested that the different lines of industry represented by that class should be given a conference, and that they be assured that the matters they complained of should be remedied. He closed his remarks by offering a resolution that the President invite the furniture men, stovemakers, lumber men and others to meet him at such time and place as would be most convenient and discuss the matter.

Mr. Goldsmith and Maj. Theobald heartily seconded Capt. Leathers' resolution, and stated that they felt that these men should be approached in a conclinatory manner and be given a calm hearing. They felt that much good to both sides would result from such a step. The resolution was adopted, and Col. Young announced that he would secure a representative meeting of these interests during the week.

After again thanking the committee for their support, and assuring them that he

Second—The trusteer of a school district can not maintain an action to recover a piece of ground given to build a school house upon for the benefit of the neighborhood, a building having been erected by the neighbors and used as a school house. The patrons of the school, or one, for all, must sue.

Smith vs. Commonwealth.

(Not to be reported.) Filed March 27, 1884,
Appeal from Bracken Circuit Court. Opinion of the court by Judge Parvos, reversing.

The conviction of appellant of the crime of murder was upon the late that he was maliciously aiding and abetting those who actually did the killing, and as the jury might have concluded from the evidence that the part he took in the afray was caused by sudden heat and passion, it was error not to instruct the jury as to manslaughter, especially in view of the fact that the jury, after hearing all the testimony in the case, returned into court with the inquiry as to their right to find the accused guilty of a less offense than murder.

DOWER—PROOF OF MARRIAGE.

Fowell vs. Calvert—Forry vs. Same.

(Not to be reported.) Filed March 27, 1884.

Appeal from Celdwell Circuit Court. Opinion of the court by Judge Pavoit, affirming.

First—in an action for dower, proof that the plaintiff and the decedent lived together as husuadd and wife for eighteen years in one community, and that the marriage relation was recognized by them and by all with whom they had any intercourse during the entire period, made out a prima facic case of marriage, and the law under such circumstances will presume the marriage to have been regular until the contrary is shown. Besides in this case there was read as evidence the marriage license with the certificate of the minister annexed that he performed the ceremony, certified by the clerk under seal as a true copy, and as there was no objection taken to the record as evidence it is too late to raise the question in this court for the first time.

late to raise the question in this court for the first time.

Second—The widow was a competent witness to prove the marriage.

Third—Although where the husband dies the owner of the homestead and it passes to his widow, she can not claim both homestead and dower; the fact that the husband was allowed the value of the homestead during his life can not effect the right of the widow to dower.

DR. WINTERSMITH'S Tonic Syrup -OR-CHILL CURE

THE BEST. 22 Cures Every Form of Feyer and Ague, Dumb Chills, Remittent and Intermit-tent Fevers.

The Chill When Broken, Does Not Return. THE reason of its superiority over Quinine and a other remedies. In this disease there is always more or less derangement of the Liver, and often of the digestive organs. The remedies usually given have reference only to preventing the paroxysm or breaking the chill, without regard to the condition the system may be left in after the chills have been removed; whereas the mere breaking of the chill is but a small part of what is required to perfect a radical cure. The various organs of the body, more especially the Liver and the Stomach, must be brought into a healthy condition, otherwise a return of the chills will be the probable result. The true reseant, therefore, why the relapses of Chills and Fever are so frequent is because they have never been more than half cured; that is, the causes which first produced the disease have never been removed. A proper use of WINTERSMITH'S TONIC never falls to cure the most obstants cases of Fever and Ague.

From the same source it was learned that the tax would be due April 3 on something over 300,000 gallons of whisky, and on May 1 the tax will be due on 500,000 more.

"How do you regard the situation today!" asked the reporter of a large dealer.

"With confidence and composure," he replied. "Atout 30,000 harrels of the Kentucky crop of 1880 were exported lassyear, and during the present year the exportations will reach 150,000 harrels. THE LAWYERS EXCITED.

A Bill to Have Suits Filed in the Common Pleas dignation Meeting Here.

There was something of a stir yesterday among the legal fraternity over a communi-tation sent from Frankfort by Representative Stoll to Chancellor Edwards. The comnunication was read from the bench yesteriay morning by the Chancellor. It stated that a bill had passed the Senate repealing section 769 of the Civil Code. The object of the bill is to have suits filed in the Common Pleas instead of in the Chancery Court. The lawyers became at once excited, and an indignation meeting was called. Speeches were made by Mr. Temple Bodley and others, and the following resolutions were

COL. JOHNSTON'S DEATH.

Another One of Louisville's Prominent Eusiness Men Sinks Into the Sleep That Knows No Waking.

A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Col. Robert A. Johnston, of the firm of D. H. Baldwin & Co., died yesterday at 12:30 o'clock at his residence, No. 416 Oak street. In his death another of the most energetic, enterprising and successful business men of Louisville passed away.

During the few busy years of his residence and business career in this city he established himself in the hearts of many friends, and won the confidence and respect of the business community in a measure that is attained by few men in a lifetime. Genial with his friends, courteous to his patrons, thoroughly understanding his business, energetic in his work, sagacious in business transactions, he won friends and held them while winning an enviable record as a man of business.

His family relations were most felicitous. He contributed liberally of his ample means to make his home comfortable, and his untimely death will be mourned by his wife and daughters, whom he loved with a devotion that made these sacred relations unusually happy. Col. Johnston was known to most of his acquaintances as a man of robust health, and the announcement of his death will be a surprise even to those who had heard of his illness. But for some years he had suffered from a complication of disorders which finally hastened his death. Only a year or two ago he was compelled to give up his ocean for the improvement of his health. At that time he was threatened with heart dis-ocean for the improvement of his health. At that time he was threatened with heart disease, but he recovered so far as to cause the hope that his complaint was of a less serious nature, and for some months past he was in comparatively good health.

A few weeks ago, Mr. Baldwin, his senior partner, of Cincinnati, was advised to give up his business pursuits and take a trip to New Mexico. This he would not consent to'do unless Col. Johnston would accompany and take care of him. The trip was arranged and they set out, the one in search of health, the other as a companion. Mr. Baldwin improved surprisingly, relieving his friend's fears that he would hardly bring him home alive, while Col. Johnston's old troubles revived. Mr. Baldwin changed places with his companion, taking the part of nurse, and fearing that he would not be able to bring his friend home alive. After many long, weary days, traveling for the most part through a country where it was almost impossible to procure medical assistance, they reached Louisville, and Col. Johnson upon arriving at his home took to his bed, since which time, though not considered dangerously ill until recently, he has not been able to leave it. He was conscious to the last, and expressed his readiness and willingness to die, having confessed his Saviour, in whom he had believed from his early boyhood.

Col. Johnson was born at Mt. Leigh, Adams country, O., in 1838. He lived on his father's farm until the war broke out, when he entisted in the Union Army. He fought at Ft. Donelson, Shiloh and on many other hotly contested fields. He entered the army as a private and was promoted along the line of officers until he received a Lieu-other hotly contested fields. He entered the army as a private and was promoted along the line of officers until he received a Lieutenant Colonel's commission.

After the war he entered the service of D. H. Baldwin & Co., dealers in pianos and organs, at Cincinnati. He began as a traveling salesman, and won the confidence of his employers, who soon discovered his ability and worth, and he was given charge of important interests, gradually gaining promotion, until, in 1877, he was sent to Louisville to establish a branch house for the company. How well he managed this trust most residents of this city well understand. His success was almost without a parallel in Louisville. He miused new life into the branch of trade which he so ably represented, and he probably sold more instruments in one year than had been sold in this city for ten year than had been sold in this city for ten year than had been sold in this city for ten year than had been sold in this city for ten years before he came. The life and energy which he are the heartest below. There was nothing unpleasant about the whisky situation yesterday, but, on the other nand a, healthy business feeling was manifested.

"There will be no whisky sold for taxes," said Collector Buckner in response to an inquiry, "but there will doubtless be considerable exportation. The whisky in bond is owned by men in all parts of the country, and they will pay the tax according to the demands of business: but any relief that is needed will be obtained through exporta-

ESAU'S BIRTHRIGHT.

Rabbi Moses Explains the Meaning of the Ancient Story.

Rabbi Moses had a good audience at the Broadway Temple last evening to hear his lecture. He spoke, saying:

"Jacob purchasing of his brother Esau his birthright is the subject of my address this evening. According to the biblical account evening. According to the biblical account can be held in foreign warehouses till it gets old and mellow, will amply repay the experter for the cost and trouble. Just enough will be exported to relieve the market and make the trade healthy. All that is not sold abroad will be brought back fine old whisky, and will command good prices." hunting, called at Jacob's tent, and seeing a dish of lintels, asked for them. Jacob said, Give me in exchange your birthright, Esau said, 'I am dying of hunger; take the birthright.' 'Swear it,' said Jacob, and Sau swore his birthright away. Taken literally, as orthodox Jewish and Christian letter worshipers do, this account puts Jacob in a bad light. I prefer to save the noble name of Israel from infamy. Knowing the hospitable nature of his descendants, know it would have been impossible for Jacob to have done this. It is time to speak the truth. The story lacks the elements of probability. Esau and Jacob lived in their father and mother's tent; all things were in common. Esau could have anything to eat; if refused by Jacob, his mother would have others, and the following resolutions were adopted:

That it is the same of the bar that Resolved. That it is the same of the bar that Resolved. That it is the same of the bar that Resolved. That it is the same of the bar that Resolved. That it is the same of the bar that Resolved. That it is the same of the bar that Resolved. That it is the same of the bar that Resolved. That it is the same of the bar that Resolved. hunters fails. It is true, not only in the race for wealth, but in mental and moral affairs. You may be born with a noble nature and I born base; you, trusting to accident, will fail to have the high character I secure by constant efforts to elevate my character."

The choir was not full. Mrs. Friedenheimer sang, "How Lovely is Zion," by Haydn. Madames Duret-Barthel and Helman sang a duet, "When I Know," and the choir sang, "Praise Thou The Lord."

Rabbi Myers is suffering from severe hoarseness and throat trouble, in consequence of which he was unable to be present last evening at the First-street Temple.
